Russian pianist Pavel Kolesnikov equates music with fine perfumes, believing both arts simultaneously speak to the heart and subconscious. The Telegraph (London) fittingly described his playing as having “brilliance, but also a caressing, almost sly intimacy” after hearing his performances during the Recital and Concerto Rounds of Canada’s Honens International Piano Competition in 2012. This recording includes highlights of those performances, for which Kolesnikov was named Honens Prize Laureate. He has studied at Moscow State Conservatory with Sergey Dorensky, at London’s Royal College of Music with Norma Fisher and at Brussels’ Queen Elisabeth Music Chapel with Maria João Pires. His recital debut took place in the Small Hall of the Moscow Conservatory in 2008 and, at the time of this recording, had already performed in recital, at festivals and with orchestras across Europe, including concerts at the Casalmaggiore International Music Festival in Italy and the Verbier Festival Academy in Switzerland.

PAVEL KOLESNIKOV

Le pianiste russe Pavel Kolesnikov compare la musique à la parfumerie fine, ces deux modes artistiques s’adressant au cœur et à l’esprit. Après avoir assisté à ses prestations au cours des épreuves de recitals et de concert au Honens International Piano Competition du Canada en 2012, le Telegraph (Londres) a justement évoqué «son jeu brillant, d’une intimité caressante et espiègle». Cet enregistrement est composé d’extraits des récitals qui ont permis à Kolesnikov de gagner le premier Prix Honens 2012. Il a étudié au Conservatoire d’État de Moscou avec Sergei Dorensky, au Royal College of Music de Londres avec Norma Fisher et à la Chapelle Musicale Reine Elisabeth à Bruxelles avec Maria João Pires. Il donne son premier récital en 2008 dans la petite salle du Conservatoire Tchaïkovsky de Moscou. Au moment de cet enregistrement, il avait déjà joué en concert avec orchestre et dans des festivals à travers l’Europe, y compris au Casalmaggiore International Music Festival en Italie, et le Verbier Festival Academy en Suisse.
