Ludwig van Beethoven (1770–1827)

Secular Vocal Works

Son of an unreliable singer in the employ of the Archbishop-Elector of Cologne, and grandson of a former distinguished Kapellmeister, Ludwig van Beethoven was born in 1770 in Bonn and until 1792 served there in the court musical establishment of the Archbishop-Elector. His family circumstances were difficult and any musical instruction he may have had from his father was irregular. As a member of the court musical establishment, however, he was able to profit from the instruction of the court organist, Gottlob Neefe, whose assistant he became. In 1787 Beethoven was sent to Vienna, where he was expected to study with Mozart, but the illness of his mother obliged him to return to Bonn and it was not until the close of 1792, a year after Mozart's death, that Beethoven was again sent to Vienna, now to study with Haydn, from whom he churlishly claimed to have learnt nothing.

In Vienna, where Beethoven settled for the rest of his life, he had direct contact with the operatic and Italianate culture of the place. He arrived there armed with introductions to leading members of society and made an early reputation for himself as a pianist and, a concomitant, as a composer. While Mozart had brought to Vienna, his home from 1781 until his death ten years later, a wide linguistic culture and the benefits of a carefully planned early education, Beethoven needed to read more widely and to improve perceived gaps in his training. He took lessons in counterpoint from Johann

<sup>1</sup> Der freie Mann, Hess 146

Beethoven made several versions of the poem Der freie Mann ('The Free Man'), with verses by the blind poet and Protestant teacher Gottlieb Konrad Pfeffel, that Beethoven may have read in the Göttinger Musenalmanach. It was his friend Wegeler who saw to the song's later extended publication, with a Masonic title that may reflect the ideals it suggests at much greater length. The first version dates from Beethoven's final years in Bonn and sets only the first verse of the poem, asking a definition of the man that is free, a question used to introduce each of the nine stanzas of the extended version.

<sup>2</sup> Opferlied, Hess 91

Beethoven's ideals find further expression in his setting of Friedrich von Matthisson's Opferlied ('Sacrificial Hymn'), a poem to which he returned on various occasions throughout his life. The poem itself appeared in the 1790 Musenalmanach and suggests, in its classical imagery, Masonic initiation and the part played in this by air, earth, fire and water. Its varied scorings include the present version for soprano solo, chorus and piano, dating from 1824.

<sup>3</sup> Bundeslied, Op. 122 'In allen guten Stunden'

Goethe's Bundeslied ('Song of Fellowship') expresses something of the feelings and society of the poet's younger days and of the Empfindsamkeit. Beethoven's first sketches for his setting date from 1795, but his final version was published only in 1825, with an alternative version with piano accompaniment replacing the more elaborate original instrumentation.

The Abschiedsgesang ('Song of Farewell'), for male voices in three parts, was written at the request of Matthias von Tuscher on the occasion of the departure of their friend Leopold Weiss for Steyr. The words are by Ignaz Joseph Ritter von Seyfried, conductor at the Theater auf der Wieden.

Cantata campestre was written in 1814, a brindisi to celebrate the name day of Beethoven's then friend, Dr Malfatti, with whom Beethoven later quarrelled. The text was by the Jesuit poet Clemente Bondi. The present Italian version is drawn from what remains of the original Italian version and an imperfect German version.

Gesang der Mönche ('Song of the Monks') sets lines on death from Schiller's William Tell, for male voices in three parts. Beethoven's setting is from 1817.

<sup>7</sup> Auf, Freunde, singt dem Gott der Ehen! (1st version), WoO 105, Hess 125 'Hochzeitslied'

Hochzeitslied ('Wedding Song') was written in January 1819 for the coming marriage of Anna Giannatasio del Rio, setting words by Anton Joseph Stein, professor of Classical Philology at the University of Vienna and a friend of the bride's father. The bridegroom was Leopold von Schmerling.

Elements of Beethoven's studies of Italian word-setting with Antonio Salieri are preserved, in some cases with Salieri's revisions. It is ironical that the name of Salieri should have become familiar to modern listeners largely through the fictional treatment of supposed rivalry between him and Mozart in Peter Shaffer's dramatic study of jealousy, Amadeus. Salieri's deathbed confession in 1825 that he had murdered Mozart was rightly seen at the time as a sign of mental derangement. The rumour, nevertheless, suggested to Pushkin a subject for one of his Little Tragedies, later to be transformed by Rimsky-Korsakov into the opera Mozart and Salieri.

Salieri was born in 1750 at Legnago, a town on the borders of Venice and the Austrian dukedom of Mantua. He studied in Italy, but it was his meeting in 1766 with Florian Leopold Gassmann, successor to Gluck at the ballet in Vienna and six years later to become Court Kapellmeister, that led Salieri to Vienna, where he was in turn to become Court Kapellmeister and exercise there a strong influence on musical life, in particular in Italian opera. His pupils included Schubert and Beethoven, Liszt and Czerny, more briefly, and a long list of composers, among them Mozart's former pupil Hummel and Mozart's second surviving son.

The exercises, settings of words by Metastasio, provide a substantial collection of songs in varied form, in many cases offering Beethoven's original version, followed by Salieri's corrected version. These have been brought together under the number WoO 99, with a series of numberings from Willy Hess for each item. These settings offer varied insights into Salieri's teaching methods and Beethoven's achievements in these years. The unaccompanied Italian settings were written during Beethoven's early days in Vienna, generally between 1793 and 1797 and those with accompaniment up to 1802. They offer a contrast with the drier exercises completed for Haydn and the contrapuntal studies for Albrechtsberger. The listings and earlier complete recordings are discussed in full by Mark S. Zimmer in The Unheard Beethoven.

The texts set include Bei labbri and Giura il nocchier from the opera La gelosia, E pur fra le tempeste and Ma tu tremi from La tempesta, Scrivo in te and Per te d'amico aprile from Il nome, Nei campi e nelle selve from Cantata

No. 27, Fra tutte le pene and Salvo tu vuoi lo sposo from Zenobia, Quella cetra ah pur tu sei from a birthday greeting for Maria Teresa, Sei mio ben and Chi mai di questo core from Cantata No. 24 and Già la notte s'avvicina from La pesca.

33 Die laute Klage, WoO 135

Die laute Klage ('The Loud Lament') sets a poem by Herder, whose literary influence was particularly strong in these years. The lament, based on an Arabic or Persian source, one of Herder's Blumen, aus morgenländischen Dichtern gesammelt ('Flowers, Collected from Oriental Poets'), and written in about 1815, has been thought to contain a final reference to Beethoven's deafness.

34 In questa tomba oscura, WoO 133

In questa tomba oscura ('In This Dark Tomb') sets words by the Italian-born writer and librettist Giuseppe Carpani. These had been suggested by a melody improvised by Countess Rzewuska. The result, not without precedent in Vienna society, was a competition among composers to write rival settings, 63 of which, by 46 composers, were issued by the publisher Mollo, concluding with Beethoven's final contribution and including a version by Haydn.

35 Klage, WoO 113

Klage ('Lament'), a setting of a poem by Hölty, dates from about 1790, and mourns the early death of a young friend, at first a happy boy (Knabe) then a youth (Jüngling) and then in the grave.

36 Lied aus der Ferne, WoO 138

Lied aus der Ferne ('Song from Afar') sets a poem by Christian Ludwig Reissig, who had served in the Austrian army, was wounded and spent his ensuing years in Vienna. He annoyed Beethoven when he claimed to have commissioned the setting from him, having it engraved and published without the composer's permission. Reissig had taken on the practice of publishing, under his own name, songs by various contemporary composers, duly acknowledged, but with prominence given to the poet himself. Beethoven attempted to anticipate Reissig's publication of the song by sending a copy, with an explanation of the circumstances, to the publishers Breitkopf & Härtel. Beethoven changed the title of the song from Lied aus der Ferne to Gesang aus der Ferne and in the same year used virtually the same music for Reissig's poem Der Jüngling in der Fremde, a poem written in the same metre. The present recording goes back to the original version, with the music of WoO 138, which starts with a simple introductory chord, and the words of WoO 137, a poem that was not at first included in Reissig's Blümchen der Einsamkeit.

37 6 Songs, Op. 48: No. 3. Vom Tode

Vom Tode ('Of Death') is included in Beethoven's 6 Songs, Op. 48, published in 1803 and setting poems by Christian Fürchtegott Gellert, a prolific writer who enjoyed considerable popularity for his advocacy of control of the passions and contented acceptance of life. The first of the seven stanzas of the full version of the poem introduces a meditation on death, a preoccupation of the poet and of Beethoven himself.

38 An die Geliebte

An die Geliebte ('To the Beloved'), it has been suggested, was intended for Antonie Brentano, identified by some as Beethoven's 'immortal beloved'. The verse set by Beethoven in 1811 is by Joseph Ludwig Stoll and may have been written at Beethoven's request. Stoll served for a time as resident dramatist at the Vienna Burgtheater, but when that employment ended had financial difficulties and was helped by Beethoven with guarantees and introductions. In support of the view that the song was intended for Antonie Brentano is the fact that she played the guitar, not an unusual accomplishment for women in Viennese society of the time, and that the first version of the song has an optional guitar accompaniment, reflected in the earlier piano figuration, as in the present draft version. Beethoven revised the song in 1814.

1 Der freie Mann, Hess 146

Wer, wer ist ein freier Mann?
Der, dem nur eigner Wille,
und kein Zwinghernn Grille
Gesetze geben kann,
der ist ein freier Mann!

Gottlieb Konrad Pfeffel, 1736–1809

2 Opferlied, Hess 91

Die Flamme lodert!
Milder Schein durchglaenzet
den düstern Eichenhain,
und Weihrauchduette wallen.
O neig ein gnaedig Ohr zu mir,
und lass des Juenglings Opfer Dir,
du Hoechster wohlgefallen.

Sei stets der Freiheit
Wehr und Schild!
Dein Lebensgeist durchatme mild
Luft, Erde, Feu'r und Fluten.
Gib mir, als Juengling und als Greis,
den vaeterlichen Herd, o Zeus,
das Schoene zu dem Guten.

Friedrich von Matthisson, 1761–1831

1 The Free Man, Hess 146

Who is a free man? Who?
He who obeys his own will
And not the whim
Of any tyrant –
He is a free man!

2 Sacrificial Hymn, Hess 91

The flame leaps up,
A gentle glow
Penetrates the sombre oak grove,
And the scent of incense swirls.
Oh bend a gracious ear to me
And let the young man's sacrifice
Content thee, O highest one!

Be ever freedom's
Defence and shield,
May your life-giving spirit breathe gently
Through air, earth, fire and flood!
Grant to me, in youth and old age,
Beauty allied to goodness
At your paternal hearth!

③ Bundeslied, Op. 122 'In allen guten Stunden'

In allen guten Stunden, erhöht von Lieb' und Wein,
soll dieses Lied verbunden
von uns gesungen sein!
Uns hält der Gott zusammen,
der uns hieher gebracht,
erneuert unsre Flammen,
er hat sie angefacht.

So glühet fröhlich heute,
Seyd recht von Herzen eins!
Auf, trinkt erneuter Freude
Diess Glas des echten Weins!
Auf! in der holden Stunde
Stosst an, und küsset treu,
Bei jedem neuen Bunde
Die alten wieder neu!

Wer lebt in unserm Kreise,
Und lebt nicht selig drin?
Geniesst die freye Weise
Und treuen Brudersinn!
So bleibt durch alle Zeiten
Herz Herzen zugekehrt!
Von keinen Kleinigkeiten
Wird unser Bund gestört.

Uns hat ein Gott gesegnet
mit freiem Lebensblick
und alles, was begegnet,
erneuert unser Glück.
Durch Grillen nicht gedrängt,
verknickt sich keine Lust;
durch Zieren nicht geenget, schlägt freier uns're Brust.

③ Song of Fellowship, Op. 122 'At all good gatherings'

At all good gatherings,
Flushed with love and wine,
May we sing together
This song of fellowship!
The god, who brought us here,
Keeps us together.
He renews the flame of friendship
Which he first kindled.

Glow then today in happiness,
Be truly one in your hearts!
Arise! Drink this glass of fine wine,
Drink to renewed joy!
Arise! At this blissful hour
Clink glasses and loyally embrace
Your old friends
At every new gathering.

Who lives in our circle
And does not live there blissfully?
Enjoy our relaxed ways
And enjoy true brotherhood!
Thus shall heart stay attuned to heart
In all the years to come,
Our fellowship shall not be disturbed
By petty trifles.

A god has blessed us
With an open outlook on life,
And all that comes to pass
Renews our contentment.
No pleasure is marred
By intrusive fancies;
Our hearts beat more freely
When not constrained by social airs.

Mit jedem Schritt wird weiter die rasche Lebensbahn
und heiter, immer heiter
steigt unser Blick hinan.
Uns wird es nimmer bange,
wenn alles steigt und fällt
und bleiben lange, lange,
auf ewig so gesellt.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1749–1832

④ Abschiedsgesang, WoO 102 'Die Stunde schlägt'

Die Stunde schlägt, wir müssen scheiden,
bald sucht vergebens dich mein Blick;
am Busen ländlich stiller Freuden
erringst du dir ein neues Glück.
Geliebter Freund! du bleibst uns theuer, ging auch die Reise nach dem Belt;
doch ist zum guten Glück Stadt Steyer, noch nicht am Ende dieser Welt.

Und kommen die Freunde um dich zu besuchen,
so sei nur hübsch freundlich und back' ihnen Kuchen,
auch werden, so wie sich's für Deutsche gehört,
auf's Wohlsein der Gäste die Humpen geleert.
Dann bringen wir froh im gezuckerten Weine
ein Gläschen dem ewigen Freundschaftsvereine, dein Töchterlein mache den Ganymed,
ich weiss, dass sie gerne dazu sich versteht,

Die Stunde schlägt, wir müssen scheiden,
bald sucht vergebens dich mein Blick;
am Busen ländlich stiller Freuden
erringst du dir ein neues Glück.
Geliebter Bruder! Lebe wohl!

Joseph Ritter von Seyfried, 1780–1849

With every step the path of life
Swiftly becomes broader,
And ever more serenely
Do we gaze aloft into the future.
We never grow anxious
At life's vicissitudes,
And thus shall we long remain
Eternally united!

④ Song of Farewell, WoO 102 'The hour strikes'

The hour strikes, we must part,
Soon my gaze shall seek you in vain;
Embraced by quiet rural joys
You shall find a new happiness.
Beloved friend! you remain dear to us,
Even though you journeyed to the Belt;
But our good fortune is that Steyer
Is not a town at the world's end.

And when friends come to visit you,
Be gracious to them and bake them cakes,
And drain your tankards, as befits German folk,
To your guests' well-being.
Then we shall happily raise a glass of sweetened wine
To toast eternal friendship –
Your little daughter shall play Ganymede,
I know that she will enjoy the role.

The hour strikes, we must part,
Soon my gaze shall seek you in vain;
Embraced by quiet rural joys
You shall find a new happiness,
Beloved brother! Farewell!

5 Cantata campestre, WoO 103, Hess 127
'Un lieto brindisi'

Un lieto brindisi
Tutti a Giovanni
Cantiam così.

Viva lunghi anni
Sempre felici
Utile al mondo,
Caro agli amici,
Nuovo Esculapio
Dei nostril di!

Viva Giovanni!
Viva ed al solito
Febbri e malanni
Segua a sanar.

Viva lunghi anni
Sempre felici
Utile al mondo,
Caro agli amici,
Nuovo Esculapio
Dei nostril di!

Viva Giovanni!
Viva ed il tempo
Sospenda i vanni,
E si bei giorni
Tardi a troncar.

Viva lunghi anni
Sempre felici
Utile al mondo,
Caro agli amici,
Nuovo Esculapio
Dei nostril di!

Clemente Bondi, 1742–1821

5 Rural Cantata, WoO 103, Hess 127
'And so let us all sing'

And so let us all sing
A joyful toast
To Giovanni.

Long may he live,
Always happy,
Useful to the world,
Dear to his friends,
The new Aesculapius
Of our days!

Long live Giovanni!
May he live and continue to cure
Fevers and illnesses,
As is his wont.

Long may he live,
Always happy,
Useful to the world,
Dear to his friends,
The new Aesculapius
Of our days!

Long live Giovanni!
May he live, and time
Suspend its wings
And halt the passing
Of such fair days!

Long may he live,
Always happy,
Useful to the world,
Dear to his friends,
The new Aesculapius
Of our days!

6 Gesang der Mönche, WoO 104 'Rasch tritt der Tod'

Rasch tritt der Tod den Menschen an,
Es ist ihm keine Frist gegeben;
Es stürzt ihn mitten in der Bahn,
Es reißt ihn fort vom vollen Leben.
Bereitet oder nicht zu gehen!
Er muß vor seinem Richter stehen!

Friedrich von Schiller, 1759–1805

7 Auf, Freunde, singt dem Gott der Ehen!, Hess 125 'Hochzeitslied'

Auf, Freunde, singt dem Gott der Ehen!
Preist Hymen hoch am Festaltar,
Daß wir des Glückes Huld erleben,
Erleben für ein edles Paar!
Vor allem laßt in frohen Weisen
Den würd'gen Doppelstamm uns preisen,
Dem dieses edle Paar entsproß!

Anton Joseph Stein, 1759–1844

Mehrstimmige italienische Gesänge, WoO 99

8 No. 1. Bei labbri che amore, Hess 211

Bei labbri, che Amore
formò per suo nido,
non ho più timore,
vi credo, mi fido:
giuraste d'amarmi;
mi basta così.
Se torno a lagnarmi
che Nice m'offenda,
per me più non splenda
la luce del dì.

6 Song of the Monks, WoO 104 'Death swiftly befalls'

Death swiftly befalls man,
No delay is granted him,
It topples him in mid-course,
It carries him off in the fullness of life,
Whether he is prepared or not,
He must stand before his Judge!

7 Arise, friends, sing to the god of marriage!,
Hess 125 'Wedding song'

Arise, friends, sing to the god of marriage!
Extol Hymen at the ceremonial altar,
May our fervent prayers bring happiness
Happiness for a noble couple!
Above all, let us in joyful song
Praise the worthy double lineage
From which this noble couple issued!

Polyphonic Italian Songs, WoO 99

8 No. 1. Beautiful lips, Hess 211

Beautiful lips that Love
Fashioned for his nest,
I have no more fear,
I believe you, I trust you:
You swore to love me;
That is enough for me.
Should I begin to lament once again
That Nice may hurt me,
Let the light of day
Shine on me no more.

9 No. 2. Ma tu tremi, o mio tesoro, Hess 212

Ma tu tremi, o mio tesoro!
Ma tu palpiti, cor mio!
Non temer, con te son io,
Né d'amor ti parlerò.

Mentre folgori, e baleni
Sarò teco, amata Nice,
Quando il ciel si rassereni,
Nice ingrata, io partirò.

10 No. 3. E pur fra le tempeste, Hess 232

E pur fra le tempeste
La calma io ritrova:
Ah, non ritorni mai,
Mai più sereno il dì!
Questo de giorni miei,
Questo è il più chiaro giorno,
Viver così vorrei,
Vorrei così morir.

11 No. 4. Sei mio ben, Hess 231

Sei mio ben, sei mio conforto,
Per te porto al cor catene,
Per te pene Amor mi dà.
Per te calma e pace spero,
Col pensiero a te m'aggirò:
Nè sospiro altra beltà.

No. 5. Giura il nocchier

12 Hess 227 (1st setting)

13 Hess 230 (2nd setting)

14 Hess 221 (3rd setting)

Giura il nocchier che al mare
non presterà più fede,
ma se tranquillo il vede
corre di nuovo al mar.

9 No. 2. But you tremble, Hess 212

But you tremble, O my treasure!
But you quiver, O my heart!
Fear not, I am with you,
And shall not speak to you of love.

As long as the thunder and lightning last,
I shall be by your side, beloved Nice,
When the sky clears again,
I shall leave, ungrateful Nice.

10 No. 3. And yet amongst these storms, Hess 232

And yet amongst these storms
I have found peace again:
Day can never again
Dawn so serenely!
Of all my days
This is the brightest,
I would love to live like this,
Like this I would love to die.

11 No. 4. You are my love, Hess 231

You are my love, you are my comfort,
For you my heart is enchained,
For you Love makes me suffer.
Through you I hope for calm and peace,
My thoughts revolve around you alone:
I never sigh for another beauty.

No. 5. The helmsman swears

12 Hess 227 (1st setting)

13 Hess 230 (2nd setting)

14 Hess 221 (3rd setting)

The helmsman swears that he
Will no longer trust the ocean,
But if he sees it calm,
He hastens to set sail again.

Di non trattar più l'armi
giura il guerrier tal volta,
ma se una tromba ascolta,
già non si sa frenar.

15 No. 7. Chi mai di questo core, Hess 214

Chi mai di questo core
Saprà le vie secrete,
Se voi non le sapete,
Begli occhi del mio ben?
Voi, che dal primo istante,
Quando divenni amante,
Il mio nascosto amore
Mi conosceste in sen

16 No. 8. Scrivo in te, Hess 215

Scrivo in te l'amato nome
Di colei per cui mi moro,
Caro al sol, felice alloro,
Come Amor l'impresse in me.
Qual tu serbi ogni tua fronda,
Serbi Clori a me costanza;
Ma non sia la mia speranza
Infeconda al par di te.

17 No. 9. Per te d'amico aprile, Hess 216

Per te d'amico aprile
Sempre s'adorni il ciel;
Né all'ombra tua gentile
Posi ninfa crudel,
Pastor infido.
Fra le tue verdi foglie,
Augel di nere spoglie
Mai non raccolga il vol;
E Filomena sol
Vi faccia il nido.

The warrior will sometimes swear
To lay down his arms,
But if he hears a trumpet,
Then all restraint is lost.

15 No. 7. Who shall ever know, Hess 214

Who shall ever know
The secret paths of this heart,
If you do not know them,
Fair eyes of my beloved?
You, who from the first moment
When I became your lover,
Recognized the love
That was hidden in my heart.

16 No. 8. In you I carve, Hess 215

In you I carve the beloved name
Of her for whom I die,
O happy laurel, dear to the sun,
As Love imprinted it in me.
Just as you preserve all your fronds,
May Cloris remain faithful to me;
But may my hope, unlike you,
One day bear fruit.

17 No. 9. For you may the sky, Hess 216

For you may the sky
Ever be decked with friendly April,
And in your kindly shade
May no cruel nymph
Nor faithless shepherd languish.
On your green leaves
May no black-plumed bird
Ever alight;
And may Philomena alone
Make her nest for you.

No. 10. Nei campi e nelle selve

<sup>18</sup> Hess 217 (1st setting)
<sup>19</sup> Hess 220 (2nd setting)

Nei campi e nelle selve
seguivo già le belve,
pascevo il gregge ancor
libero pastorello,
libero cacciator.

Ora non son più quello:
perdei la libertà.
E quel ch'è peggio, oh Dio,
come se il mio tormento
colpa non sia di lei,
mostrare al mio lamento
Clori non vuol pietà.

No. 11. Fra tutte le pene

<sup>24</sup> Hess 224 (3rd setting, original version)
<sup>25</sup> Hess 210 (3rd setting, revised by A. Salieri)

Fra tutte le pene
V'è pena maggiore?
Son presso al mio bene,
Sospiro d'amore,
E dirgli non oso:
Sospiro per te.
Mi manca il valore
Per tanto soffrire;
Mi manca l'ardire
Per chieder mercè.

No. 10. In the fields and in the forests

<sup>18</sup> Hess 217 (1st setting)
<sup>19</sup> Hess 220 (2nd setting)

In the fields and in the forests
I was hunting wild beasts,
And feeding the flocks
As a free shepherd,
A free huntsman.

Now I am no longer free:
I have lost my liberty.
And what is worse, O God -
As if my torment were no fault of hers,
Cloris shows no pity
For my suffering.

<sup>24</sup> Hess 224 (3rd setting, original version)
<sup>25</sup> Hess 210 (3rd setting, revised by A. Salieri)

Amid all these griefs
Can there be a greater grief?
I am near my beloved
And I sigh with love
And dare not tell him:
I sigh for you.
I lack the courage
To suffer so much;
I lack the boldness
To beg for pity.

No. 12. Salvo tu vuoi lo sposo?

<sup>26</sup> (1st setting)
<sup>27</sup> Hess 228 (2nd setting)

Salvo tu vuoi lo sposo?
Salvo lo sposo avrai:
Lascia il tuo riposo,
Lascia la cura a me.
I dubbi tuoi perdono:
Tutto il mio cor non sai:
Ti spiegherà chi sono,
Quel ch'io farò per te.

No. 13. Quella cetra ah pur tu sei

<sup>28</sup> Hess 218 (1st setting)
<sup>29</sup> Hess 219 (2nd setting)
<sup>30</sup> Hess 213 (3rd setting)

Quella cetra ah pur tu sei
Che addolci gli affanni miei,
Che d'ogni alma a suo talento,
Che d'ogni cor la via s'apri.
Ah! sei tu, tu sei pur quella,
Che nel sen della mia bella
Tante volte, io lo rammento,
La ferezza intenerì.

No. 14. Già la notte s'avvicina

<sup>31</sup> Hess 223 (1st setting)
<sup>32</sup> Hess 222 (2nd setting)

Già la notte s'avvicina:
Vieni, o Nice, amato bene,
Della placida marina
Le fresch' aure a respirar.

Non sa dir che sia diletto
Chi non posa in queste arene,
Or che un lento zeffiretto
Dolcemente increspa il mar.

No. 12. You wish your husband to be safe?

<sup>27</sup> Hess 228 (2nd setting)

You wish your husband to be safe?
You shall have your husband safe.
Let me be the one
To give you peace of mind.
I forgive all your doubts:
You do not know all my heart:
It will explain who I am
And what I shall do for you.

No. 13. Ah! but you are that same lyre

<sup>28</sup> Hess 218 (1st setting)
<sup>29</sup> Hess 219 (2nd setting)
<sup>30</sup> Hess 213 (3rd setting)

Ah! but you are that same lyre
Which has soothed my suffering,
Which has found its own way
Into every heart and soul.
Ah! but you are that same lyre
Which, as I recall, has so often
Melted the hard heart
Within my beloved's breast.

No. 14. Night already descends

<sup>31</sup> Hess 223 (1st setting)
<sup>32</sup> Hess 222 (2nd setting)

Night already descends,
Come, O Nice, dearly beloved,
And breathe the fresh air
Of the calm seashore.

He who dwells not on these shores
Cannot know the pleasures to be had
When a gentle little breeze
Softly ripples the waves.

33 Die laute Klage, WoO 135

Turteltaube, du klagest so laut und raubest dem Armen
Seinen einzigen Trost, süßen vergessenden Schlaf:
Turteltaub', ich jammre wie du und berge den Jammer
Ins verwundete Herz, in die verschlossene Brust.
Ach, die hart-verteilende Liebe! Sie gab dir die laute Jammerklage zum Trost, mir den verstummenden Sinn!

Johann Gottfried Herder, 1744–1803

34 In questa tomba oscura, WoO 133

In questa tomba oscura
Lasciami riposar;
Quando vivevo, ingrata,
Dovevi a me pensar.
Lascia che l'ombre ignude
Godansi pace almen,
E non bagnar mie ceneri
D'inutile velen.

Giuseppe Carpani, 1752–1825

35 Klage, WoO 113

Dein Silber schien
Durch Eichengrün,
Das Kühlung gab,
Auf mich herab,
O Mond, und lachte Ruh
Mir frohen Knaben zu.

Wenn itzt dein Licht
Durchs Fenster bricht,
Lachts keine Ruh
Mir Jüngling zu,
Siehts meine Wange blaß,

33 The Loud Lament, WoO 135

Turtledove, you lament so loudly and deprive the poor wretch
Of his only solace, the sweet sleep of oblivion:
Turtledove, I grieve like you and conceal my grief
Within my wounded heart, within my closed breast.
Ah, it was love, which apports so cruelly, that gave you
That loud lament for solace, and to me gave silence!

34 In this dark tomb, WoO 133

In this dark tomb
Let me rest;
While I still lived, O faithless one,
You should have thought of me.
Allow, at least, a naked shade
To enjoy its peace,
And do not bathe my ashes
In useless venom.

35 Lament, WoO 113

Your silvery light
Shone down on me
Through the green oaks
That gave cool shade,
O moon, and shed smiling peace
On this happy youth.

When now your light
Streams through my window,
No peace smiles
On this young man,
It sees my cheeks pale,

Mein Auge thränennaß.
Bald, lieber Freund,
Ach, bald bescheint
Dein Silberschein
Den Leichenstein,
Der meine Asche birgt,
Des Jünglings Asche birgt!

Ludwig Christoph Heinrich Hölty, 1748–1776

36 Lied aus der Ferne, WoO 138

Als mir noch die Träne der Sehnsucht nicht floß,
Und neidisch die Ferne nicht Liebchen verschloß,
Wie glich da mein Leben dem blühenden Kranz,
Dem Nachtigallwäldchen, voll Spiel und voll Tanz!

Nun treibt mich oft Sehnsucht hinaus auf die Höhen,
Den Wunsch meines Herzens wo lächeln zu seh'n!
Hier sucht in der Gegend mein schmachsender Blick,
Doch kehret es nimmer befriedigt zurück.

Wie klopft es im Busen, als wärest du mir nah,
O komm, meine Holde, dein Jüngling ist da!
Ich opfre dir alles, was Gott mir verlieh,
Denn wie ich dich liebe, so liebt' ich noch nie!

O Teure, komm eilig zum bräutlichen Tanz!
Ich pflege schon Rosen und Myrten zum Kranz.
Komm, zaubre mein Hüttchen zum Tempel der Ruh,
Zum Tempel der Wonne, die Göttin sei du!

Christian Ludwig Reissig, 1783–1847

My eyes moist with tears.
Soon, dear friend,
Ah soon! your silvery light
Will shine
On the tombstone
That hides my ashes,
The young man's ashes!

36 Song from Afar, WoO 138

Before my tears of longing flowed,
And envious distance kept my beloved from me,
How my life then resembled the blossoming wreath,
The nightingale wood, teeming with play and dance!

Now longing often drives me out to the hills
To see where my heart's desire is smiling!
My yearning gaze searches all around,
But never returns content.

How my heart pounds, as if you were near me,
O come, my sweetest, your young man is here!
I'll offer you all that God has given me,
For I was never in love, the way I love you!

O sweetest, come quickly to your bridal dance!
I'm growing myrtles and roses for your wreath.
Come, make my cottage an enchanted temple of peace,
A temple of rapture, and be its goddess!

97 6 Songs, Op. 48: No. 3. Vom Tode

Meine Lebenszeit verstreicht,
Stündlich eil' ich zu dem Grabe,
Und was ist's, das ich vielleicht,
Das ich noch zu leben habe?
Denk, o Mensch! an deinen Tod.
Säume nicht; denn Eins ist not!

Christian Fürchtegott Gellert, 1715–1769

38 An die Geliebte

O daß ich dir vom stillen Auge
In seinem liebevollen Schein
Die Tränen von der Wange sauge,
Eh sie die Erde trinket ein!

Wohl hält sie zögernd auf der Wange
Und will sich heiß der Treue weihn.
Nun ich sie so im Kuß empfangen,
Nun sind auch deine Schmerzen mein!

Josef Ludwig Stoll, 1778–1815

97 6 Songs, Op. 48: No. 3. Of Death

My days on earth slip by,
Hour by hour I hasten to the grave;
And how long do I perhaps
Still have to live?
Think, O man, upon your death,
Do not delay; for one thing is needful.

38 To the Beloved

Ah, that from your tranquil eyes
With their loving light,
And from your cheeks I might drink the tears,
Before the earth consumes them.

They linger trembling on your cheek,
An ardent witness to true love;
Now when I capture them in a kiss,
Your sorrows too are mine!

Ensemble Tamanial

Clockwise from top left: Tabea Gerstgrasser, Marianne Prenner, Alex Gazda, Nicolas Frémy

Ensemble Tamanial is an a cappella quartet based in Vienna, Austria. The quartet comprises Tabea Gerstgrasser, soprano and Marianne Prenner, mezzo-soprano, both of whom are from Austria, French tenor Nicolas Frémy, and Alex Gazda, baritone, who is originally from the United States. Having previously worked together on other projects within larger ensembles, the young singers have relished the challenges of the more intimate setting of Ensemble Tamanial. The ensemble was established to provide a place in which to grow and learn as musicians through undertaking soloist responsibility across a wide variety of musical styles, including Renaissance, Classical, Romantic and also in contemporary works. A high standard of musical excellence as an ensemble is as much of central interest to the singers as accomplishing individual vocal goals. The singers also pursue individual musical endeavours throughout Europe and the United States. For these Beethoven recordings the ensemble have been working closely with Thomas Holmes as their musical director and wish to express their deep gratitude.

Diána Fuchs

Hungarian-born Diána Fuchs graduated from the Music and Arts University of the City of Vienna where she studied with Thomas Kreuzberger and Doris Adam, and from the University of Music and Performing Arts Vienna where she was under the tutelage of Stefan Gottfried and Albert Sassmann. In 2019 she extended her studies at the Royal Academy of Music in London with Amandine Savary. Diána Fuchs regularly gives solo concerts and also performs with chamber music ensembles such as the Dohnányi Orchestra Budafok under the direction of Guido Mancusi. Her profession as a concert musician has taken her to many European cities such as Komló, Pécs, Vienna, Belgrade, London and Oslo. She is the winner of the György Ferenczy Art Award in Budapest, and was a prizewinner at the International Béla Bartók Piano Competition in Graz. Her artistic development has been strongly influenced by masterclasses with Heinz Medjimorec, Robert Lehrbaumer, Balázs Szokolay, Malcolm Bilson, Jesper Bøje Christensen, Silvia Limongelli, Amandine Savary and Steven Osborne.

Bernadette Bartos

Born in Austria in 1982, the pianist Bernadette Bartos studied at the Universität für Musik und darstellende Kunst Wien and the Royal College of Music, London. Since October 2012, Bartos has been working as a vocal répétiteur for Lieder and oratorio at the Mozarteum University Salzburg. Her activities as a concert pianist have led her across Europe and South America, and she has performed in the Musikverein and Konzerthaus in Vienna. Her debut at Regent Hall in London gained her First Prize in the Beethoven Chamber Music Competition of the Beethoven Society of Europe. Bartos regularly shares the stage with singers such as Rainer Trost, Paul Armin Edelmann and Elisabeth Wimmer. Her discography, released on Gramola, includes an album of Randhartinger Lieder with baritone Wolfgang Holzmair, and a release that consists of excerpts from operas by Wagner transcribed for violin and piano with Gerald Schubert, which received acclaim in Pizzicato magazine. Bartos has been represented by the Vienna Music Connection artists agency (VCM) since 2014.

Cantus Novus Wien

Viennese chamber choir Cantus Novus Wien draws on an extensive repertoire of Baroque, Classical, and contemporary music, including a cappella choral music, oratorios by Handel and Haydn, and requiems by Mozart, Brahms, Verdi, and Fauré. Contemporary music is one of the choir's focal points, including regular world premieres of commissioned pieces. The clear and warm timbre of the choir is also influenced by 21st century composers such as Eric Whitacre, Paul Mealor, Morten Lauridsen, and Ola Gjeilo. Named as Choir of the Year by Chorforum Wien in 2018, the ensemble regularly collaborates with choirs and composers from Sweden, Finland, the UK and Switzerland. It is also a frequent guest at major concert series. In 2018, Cantus Novus Wien made its debut at the Wiener Musikverein at the invitation of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, performing Mahler's Symphony No. 2. In 2019, the choir was invited to perform at Hollywood in Vienna, a symphonic gala concert celebrating classic and current masterpieces of film music in the prestigious Wiener Konzerthaus. In 2020, Cantus Novus Wien will appear at the Festival of St Stephen's Cathedral, Vienna, celebrating the consecration of its new Rieger Cathedral Organ. The choir has been conducted by Thomas Holmes since 2001.

Thomas Holmes

Thomas Holmes has conducted Cantus Novus Wien since 2001. At the age of five, he started to learn the violin, and received his first piano lessons as a member of the Vienna Boys Choir. He continued his studies in Church Music at the Universität für Musik und darstellende Kunst Wien, with an emphasis on choral conducting, organ, liturgical organ improvisation, Gregorian chant and music education. For many years, Holmes was a singer in the Arnold Schoenberg Choir, as well as organist and harpsichordist of the Vindobona Baroque Ensemble. From 1994 to 2005 he was artistic leader of the Gregorian Chant Schola of the Vienna Imperial Chapel. He has also worked as recording manager of choral music and Gregorian chant for Philips Classics among others, and has taken part in both national and international concerts, as well as in audio recordings as a singer, pianist and choirmaster. Furthermore, he has served as a professor at the Konservatorium für Kirchenmusik der Erzdiözese Wien. Holmes is a lecturer on choral conducting and Gregorian chant, and regularly hosts radio programmes dedicated to sacred music.

Cantus Novus Wien at the Wotrubakirche, Vienna

Beethoven's secular vocal works, many rarely heard today, were composed for a variety of reasons. Some were written for marriages, to mark the departure of a friend or to celebrate a name day, while others allude to Masonic imagery or set the words of great literary contemporaries, such as Schiller. The larger canvas of Mehrstimmige italienische Gesänge reflects Beethoven's studies of Italian word-setting with Antonio Salieri, revealing insights into Beethoven's achievements during his early years in Vienna.
